A SIGHT WORTH SERING is the work upon the extension of the Capitol, at this time Capt. Meigs, of the United States Army, the Superintendent, evidently has his hands full, and is professional rejutation, indeed. The beauties of the design of the architect, Thomas H. Walter, Esq., are beginning to develope themselves, as the exterior marble walls are rising. We found, yesterday, the marble work of one of the windows of the second story completed. Its pediment, head, and brackets resting on beautifully designed and artistically executed consules, make it by long odds the most charming thing of the sort ever attempted in this country. In both wings, there are to be one hundred and forty such windows, which, in themselves, will make the building famous as a work of art, even though it should embrace nothing more worthy of particular admira tion. Indeed, the design of these windows embraces, to our taste, the very perfection of artistic beauty and grace. Mr. Alexander Rutherford, long known here as a worthy and Industrious mechanic, is charged with the personal superintendence of the marble work of this immense pile. That he is performing his duty in its every point, is evident in the man-Der in which the work is being executed U to this time that portion of it already set in the building is faultless in its execution, as all declare who have critically inspected it The duties of Mr. Rutherford are exceedingly arduous, requiring not only unceasing attention, but energy and mechanical talents such as few among us are known to possess. He has to keep an eye over the execution of two hundred and thirty cutters and artists in marble, and one hundred and twenty laborers That is, to see that in executing the work, handling and setting the pieces, &c., strict justice is done to the Government. These marble cutters, artists, laborers, &c., for the most part work in one shop-600 by 40 feet! at is probably at this time the largest marble cutting shop in the world. If anything should occur in it by which the attention of all hands enerein employed should be taken off their work for one minute only, that delay would cost the contractors, Provest & Winter, $7. From this fact it will be perceived how enormous the expenses of these gentlemen are. Un their part, the superintendence of this im mense work is in charge of our so popular fellow citizen, Mr. Wm. H. Winter, who as a matter of couse, must have his eyes about him It is a subject of congratulation that their immense unde taking on Government account is altogether in the hands of citizens of Washing'on, as the manner in which this energetic and so competent firm are discharging their heavy and responsible obligations to the Gov ernment is eliciting praises on all handsdemonstrating as it does that our city's mechanics are quite equal to any possible demand upon them.

This firm also employ fifty marble cutters an i as many laborers on their contract for the execution of the marble work of the extension of the Patent Office building, where Col. Provest is the presiding genius. We presume that they can hardly be paying out less than from $23,000 to $25,000 per month, in gold, for es. In times like the present, the undertakings of such a firm are of the first import ance to a city like ours, as may be gathered night the following names were recorded, viz: from the statistics we havily present above.

"FRANKLIN HALL."-The fine building. just erected and nearly finished, on the corner of Ninth and D : treets, has been, we learn, christened with the above most appropriate name by the residents in its vicinity, without the knowledge of the worthy proprietor, Mr. Stephen P. Franklin. It is one of the best built houses in the metropolis, and is a vast improvement to the neighborhood, and worthy to bear the name of the "great American. and to stand as a monument to the energy name, and liberal public-improvement spirit of his namesake. "Franklin Hall" is located in the very center of the city, but a few yards from the avenue, and in a very desirable position for business, and we soon expect to see its spacious store and upper halls teeming with life and trade. Mr. Digges, the bricklayer, and Entwisle, the carpenter, deserve the usual credit for the masterly construction, and its rapid progress. No part of Washno position offers greater facilities for flourishing trade. Within a year or two, fine build ings have been put up by Mr. Gideon, and merchants, and others are in the course of erection by Mr Owen; and for next spring the construction of others is contemplated. D street is being graded and paved from Eleventh street to 7th, opening a great thoroughfare through that district, and making it evident to the judgment of any one that business will soon convert this portion of the city into a bustling mart of trade.

MESNE PROCESS.—Some years since Congress amended the law by which debts were collected in this city, and the consequence was, that considerable trouble is encountered in the collection of small debts. Last evening a farmer. When he ought (as the father a gentleman went to the Guardhouse and told Captain Birch that there was a person in Washington, who owed his mother a sum of money for house rent, and who was about to leave the city in the cars this morning with out paying. The Magistrate told him he could ssue a warrant, but if the debtor was acquainted with the law, he would only write his name on the warrant and leave the city as he intended. The warrant was issued and placed Mr. Olmstead, he painted some twenty porintended. The warrant was issued and placed in the hands of an old officer, who went to the cars this morning and arrested the person, and told him he could not release him till the moasy was paid.

The person though born and raised in the District, forgot all about the repealing act of Congress He asked the amount of the bills and "forked ever" gold enough to pay the bills and the legal fees. It is well that ignorance sometimes makes people honest.

RIOTING -This morning, Samuel Shekells appeared for trial before Captain Birch on the charge of participating in the riot at the lager beer house. It was proved that he was not in the neighborhood, and was dismissed by the captain. Joseph Parris was also charged with participating in a riot in the First Ward some nights since. He was held to bail for a further hearing.

Others were sent to the workhouse as vagrants, they repeating their visits too often.

GEORGETOWN CORRESPONDENCE

GEORGETOWN, Dec. 1, 1854. Some of the long-heads among us think that ington has improved mere substantially than they discover in the great falling off in the this neighborhood of Ninth and D streets, and shipments of specie to Europe a good omenan indication that the northern banks will soon begin to discount more liberally, which there not a good deal of difference in Mr. Bulwere immediately occupied by enterprising will greatly modify the pressure upon the lard's feelings now, when he is receiving his money market. The breaks once raised in New York, the bank machinery throughout the country will begin to run smoothly. This may all be true, but we would rather see it than enter into calculations concerning it. We hope, however, that their predictions are

YOUNG MEN, READ THIS!

A day or two since we learned from a gentleman of New York city, a few facts relative to Mr. Bullard, who is now exhibiting here his Panorama of New York CITY, which, at the time they were related, very much inoccasion. Mr. Lehr is a gentleman of talent interest all who have struggled and are strugthe town of Howard, Steuben county, N. Y. His father, was a farmer, and young Bullard remained at home and worked on the farm until he was 14 years of age, at which time his father declared he was "too lazy" to make thought) to be at work on the farm he was cutting out of shingles the portraits of every boy and girl in the neighborhood. The father. not being able to control the bent of the boy's mind, put him with Augustus A. Olmstead, Esq., of his native town, to learn the trade of sign painting. He remained with Mr. 01mstead seven years, till he became twenty-one traits of different individuals living in Howard. For painting these portraits he received some $25. With this amount of money he started for New York city.

He had expected to find the National Academy of Design open on Exhibition and to see the paintings, and become acquainted with the artists, and to find it possible some one to instruct him in his favorite art. He arrived there, and found the exhibition closed, which very much disappointed him. He roved around the great city a day or two, and was unable to find any artist to instruct or encourage him, and his purse becoming very low, he went to Hartford, Conn, in the vicinity of which place he had friends. He remained in Hart ford one year, receiving instructions in his art from an artist by the name of Hewens. After leaving Mr. Hewens, he went into the country from Hartford, and painted portraits, and realized money enough to pay the debts he had contracted in Hartford for board, &c. During the year he was in Hartford, such was his extreme poverty that he attended church but six times, because he had not clothes to wear that were suitable After meeting with various raverses of fortune, he returned to Howard in 1841, and was married to Miss An- above I street, and only two squares from the Patent geline A. In 1846 he received the idea of painting this great work, the Panorama of New York city, and found a noble hearted Englishman, George Doel, who furnished the means to go on with the painting. Mr. Bullard and from three to seven men were engaged in this great work four years; Mr. Doel promptly paid the bills as they became due-in all $15,000. The Painting was completed on the 1st day of November, 1850.

What a lesson here for every young man. Is there a young man in our city who has felt the tears of poverty rolling down his cheeks, who, when he has become fatigued with the labors of the day, has sat down in his room by the side of his desk, and rested his head upon his hand, and there under the lid of his desk were his board bills, and others too numerous to mention, unpaid, and he has at those time felt almost discouraged, and said to himself, it is no use to try? If, we say, there is such an one, he will be encouraged by reading this. and glory in the success of Mr. Bullard Is one and two hundred dollars a day from persons who go to look at his Panorama, and when he saw at Hartford, and could not attend church because he had not clothes that were decent? So it is in this world, "God helps those who help themselves."

We say to Mr. Bullard as the converted Heathen said to one of our missionaries go go go. Since writing the above it occurs to us that we some time since read the life of Mr. Bullard, n the American Biographical Sketch Book, of elf made men .- Rochester Daily Herald.

Virginia Democratic Convention

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 1 .- The Virginia Democratic Convention met at Staunton to-day, and was temporarily organised by the estection of Col. George Baylor, ot Auguesta, Chairman, Wm. F. Ritche and Robert W. Hughes, Secretaries. A committee of one from each district was appointed to nominate permanent offices, who reported Oscar M. Crutchfield, of Spottsylvania, for President, and thirteen Vice Presidents and the Secretaries as above named. Considerable confusion ensued upon a motion to go into a nomination for Governor, and a long debate took ploce upon the rules regulating the casting of the vote.

Mr. Shackleford moved that the convention do not make a nomination for Governor or Lieutenant Governor unless the cancidates receive a vote sufficient to represent a majority of the whole Democratic vote of the State. Mr. Garnett offered a substitute that it shall require a majority of all the votes cast to nominate candidates for Governor, Lieut. Governor, and Attorney General Adopted. This was considered a triumph for Mr. Wise, his party being the strongest in the Conven-Exciting times are expected to-day, and an effort will probably be made further to amend the rules by adopting the two-thirds rule.

The Democratic vote represented in the Convention is 61,406. The whole vote of the party in the State is
